

WHAT IS THE CIVILIAN REVIEW BOARD?

The Civilian Review Board of Baltimore City is the only independent agency authorized to investigate the police. The Civilian Review Board investigates complaints from the public that allege the use of excessive force, abusive language, harassment, false arrest, and false imprisonment. Also, the Civilian Review Board has the power to review Police Department policies and procedures and make recommendations.

CAN I FILE A COMPLAINT?

YES, if you were a victim of or witness to an act of excessive force, abusive language, harassment, false arrest, or false imprisonment by a law enforcement officer then you can file a complaint.

SHOULD I FILE A COMPLAINT?

If you were a victim of police misconduct, it can be difficult and intimidating to file a complaint. That's why a witness to an event can also file a complaint and make sure that action is taken.

Filing a complaint means that your situation will be addressed and it can prevent other people from experiencing other bad acts. Remember to get as many identifying details as possible during an encounter with a police officer. This may include the officer's physical appearance and badge number.

HOW LONG DO I HAVE TO FILE A COMPLAINT?

It is important that you file a complaint as soon as possible so that the events are still fresh in your mind. Your participation during the process of investigating the complaint is extremely important.

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER I FILE A COMPLAINT?

A copy of the complaint is given to you. The Board may then:

- 1) Conduct its own investigation independent of the police; or
- 2) Not conduct its own investigation and review the completed Internal Affairs investigation.

After the investigation is complete, the Board will review the investigative report. The next step will be to recommend to the Police Commissioner to sustain, unsustain, exonerate or find the complaint unfounded. The Police Commissioner must consider the recommendation from the Board before he makes his final decision.

WHAT AGENCIES CAN I FILE A COMPLAINT AGAINST?

The Civilian Review Board handles complaints regarding the following law enforcement units:

- Baltimore City Police Department
 - Baltimore City School Police
 - Baltimore City Sheriff's Office
 - Baltimore Watershed Police
 - Morgan State University Police
 - Baltimore City Community College Police
